

Question:

1) How ~~do~~ did Guptas, Mauryas, Senas Palas and Senas impact the political, social, economical and cultural aspects of Ancient Bengal?

Ans: Firstly the Mauryans came to Bengal and impacted Bengal in several ways. They
a) introduced Buddhism in Bengal. ~~by sea~~
King Ashoka made some diplomatic moves to spread Buddhism and abolish the caste system like ~~doctr.~~. He sent diplomatic missionaries, bureaucrats and traders with Buddhist artifacts and traders. This helped ~~ear~~ erase the social division.

Q) How did Guptas, Mauryas, Palas and Senas impact the political, social, economical and cultural aspects of Ancient Bengal?

Ans: The Mauryans established the Mauryan dynasty and in 300-200 BC and the founder of this dynasty was Chandragupta Maurya. ~~Vanga and Samatata~~ They brought a centralized government in Bengal. They had a great king named Asoka. King Asoka wanted to spread Buddhism. He made some major diplomatic moves. Asoka sent diplomatic missionaries, bureaucrats and traders with Buddhist artifacts and doctrines to spread Buddhism and abolish the Hindu caste system that the Aryans had brought in Bengal. Mauryans also ~~united~~ expanded their territory and unified Bengal with the Indian subcontinent. They built the Grand Trunk Road.

which facilitated the trade and attracted people from around the globe. ~~But~~ The preaching of Buddhism also helped Bengal connect to South East Asia and other parts of the world.

The ~~Guj~~ Guptas came after the Mauryas and enforced a well-organized administrative system ^{known as Kautilya's}. They established the silk route connecting India to parts of China which advanced the trading system. It is called the golden period of Ancient Bengal.

The Guptas used to practice Brahmanism which is the earliest form of Hinduism. And they used to speak in Sanskrit which was the language of the elite class. They also established temples, arts and sculptures to promote Hinduism. Moreover, trade and commerce was also developed.

They also introduced currency and established Taxila, one of the world's earliest universities which played a crucial role in the spread of Buddhism.

Gopala founded the Pala dynasty after the fall of the Guptas. The Palas promoted Buddhism and established monasteries and temples. Bangla language evolved from Pali language. They were a promoter of culture and literature. Atish Dipankar, who was a pioneer of Buddhist philosophy, was invited to preach Buddhism. The Palas had three ages: Age of ascension, age of flourishing, age of decline. They ruled for 400 years but ~~were stopped by the~~ the reason cause of their fall was because they stopped the catching of fish. This caused the Kaibarta revolution and they lost influence, eventually giving up power to Vijay Sena, in the beginning of the 12th century.

Subject :

Vijay Sena was the king of the Sena ~~dyna~~ dynasty. He was an independent ruler. The Senas were Hindus. They practiced Brahmanism and established Hindu architecture, temples. Lakshmana Sena was attacked by Turkish ruler Iktidar Uddin Md Bin Balchtar Ichilji.